5. Reports of IAC Ad Hoc Working

b. The members agreed that the following procedure should govern the handling of future editions of these reports: (1) the covers of the reports will indicate clearly that they are working papers prepared by an ad hoc working group of the IAC, but not specifically approved by the IAC itself; (2) the IAC will note the reports but will not formally coordinate or approve them; (3) at the time of noting, the IAC will consider any questions of authorizing wider dissemination by individual members.

c. The members agreed that copies of previously published reports of the ad hoc working group might be sent to US commands or establishments abroad in the discretion and on the responsibility of individual agencies, with the suggestion that such copies be appropriately marked to identify them as working documents which had not been approved by the IAC itself.

6. IAC Concurrence in Army
Sponsorship of "Mass Feeding" Exchange
(IAC-D-103/1, 3 May 1956)

a. General Gaither and other members discussed this report, particularly with respect to the precise procedure to be followed in designating the Department of the Army as the sponsoring agency in this field. They also exchanged views briefly on the probable net intelligence gain which the US might derive from such an exchange. According to Mr. Belmont, the FBI considered that the probable net advantage to the US from the exchange program had not been concretely demonstrated, and that such exchanges would involve a potential security risk.

b. The members, by virtue of their acceptance of an amendment, proposed by General Gaither, to the recommended action in paragraph 3, approved, solely from the standpoint of greatest possible net intelligence advantage, the selection of the Department of the Army as the sponsoring agency for an exchange in this field. The members also agreed that the IAC should inform the State Department of this conclusion and recommend that if the concept of an exchange in this field is approved as consistent with

The members noted the findings and approved the recommendations of this post-mortem. In the course of the discussion, Mr. Armstrong noted the statement in paragraph 1, indicating that the approach of this post-mortem differed somewhat from that of post-mortems on other estimates, and the members agreed that it should not serve as a precedent for future post-mortems.

10. "Situation Room" in the White House

Mr. Sheldon informed the members that the White House had asked the Director of Central Intelligence to assist in setting up a "situation room" in the White House, and in providing any necessary intelligence or personnel to support the project. He stated that the deadline for completion of the "situation room" is 1 July, in order that it may be in readiness for Operation Alert. Mr. Sheldon added that the DCI has accepted, but desires support from the IAC agencies, particularly in Order of Battle information.

After a brief discussion of various problems connected with the operation of the "situation room," the members agreed to designate representatives with whom Mr. Sheldon could consult in order to work out details of plans for support of the project by the IAC agencies concerned.
